

I will be basing the final project off of the similar concept of the Midterm project, Have a whole website based around weightlifting in the gym. I plan on making a webpage that will mimic online fitness courses. Have a homepage that serves as a brief introduction to all the kinds of training and have training plans with the monthly cost as well. The other pages will be delving into what kind of training style you want to embark on, whether it be a bodybuilding plan, a powerlifting plan, or a calisthenics plan. The typography will have a strong font throughout, and whenever you have your mouse cursor over any of the plans, the training plan button will change. For instance, the powerlifting plan will have an image of a bench press and when you have the cursor over it, the image will animate a repetition. The same will go for the other plans as well. The main colors throughout the final project will be all red and blue. Other key concepts will come up during the creation process, in due time.
